Thanks

We are particularly grateful to the following colleagues who took the time to show us around their self-access centres and explain what goes on there: Ahmed B. Buyong and Jesintha Jeamalar (Sekolah Rendah Kebangsaan (L), Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia), Poon Noor Rezan and Mazwin Tajuddin (Sekolah Menengah Wangsa Maju 2, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia), Richard Pemberton (The University of Science and Technology, Hong Kong), and Felicity O'Dell (Eurocentres, Cambridge, UK).

We are also grateful to Christine Heuring for discussions about counselling in SALL, Paul Raj for co-ordinating the Malaysian school visits and Chan Chap Choi, Jasper for art work.

We are grateful to the numerous colleagues who have discussed our ideas with us over the years, especially the members of the Hong Kong Association for Self-Access Learning and Development. Members of the Association have provided a stimulating environment by talking about self-access and listening to us talking about it.

Felicity O'Dell is already mentioned above for her kindness in showing us around the Eurocentres SAC but she has done much more. We are grateful to her for reading the manuscript and making many invaluable comments and suggestions for improving it.

We would also like to thank Alison Sharpe and Mickey Bonin, our editors at Cambridge University Press. The former for initiating the project and the latter for bringing it to fruition.

Finally, we would like to thank Rocío Blasco García whose amazing eye for detail while proof-reading our manuscript has improved it considerably.

If we have inadvertently forgotten to acknowledge anyone else who has helped us please excuse us and put it down to failing memories caused by spending too long in front of the word processor.
