CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

Index

abridged fiction, 274 academic writing: assessment and, 174; contrastive rhetoric and, 226–7, 229–30; genre and, 207–9
American College Testing (ACT), 168 American Sign Language (ASL), 104–7 analytic scales, 42
APA style, 95
Applebee, Arthur, 4 appropriation, 124–5, 129
Army Specialized Training Program (ASTP), 17 article system (English), 96, 154, 156, 225 assessment: 184–9; alternative methods for, 179–81; changes in field of, 162–3; computerized testing and, 180–1; constructs and, 165–79; cross-cultural rhetoric and, 174–5; curriculum and, 81–4; direct v. indirect, 162–4, 167; error role and, 173; exam cultures and, 182; expectations of, 163–7; familiarity with students and, 168, 181–2; genre and, 173–4; peer support and, 180; portfolio, 179–80; rater training effects and, 178–9; readers and, 177–9, 257–8; reliability and, 163–4; scale length and, 176–7; scoring procedure for, 175–6; task variables and, 170–3; teachers' view of, 162; test performance v. potential, 182–3; text analysis and, 173–9; validities and, 164–7; washback and, 182, 183n1; writer and, 168–70, 257–8 Atkinson, D., 233–4
autobiographic fiction, 272

Biber, D., 154
Bibliomania, 302
Bizzell, P., 179
Bloomfield, Leonard, 16–17
Braddock, R., 142
British National Corpus Online, 303
Britton, James, 143
Brossell, G., 183
bulletin boards, 295–6

Cambridge FCE (First Certificate of English), 174 canonical literature, 274–7 Carson, Joan, 227, 250–2, 255 categorization schemes, 61n3 causal-comparative research, 38, 43–4 chat rooms, 296–8
Chenoweth, N., 320
Chinese, 99–101, 223–4, 227, 250
Christensen, Francis, 20
Christie, F., 200
City University of New York (CUNY), 23–5 classroom: college environment and, 321–3; computers and, 285–306; contrastive rhetoric and, 227; essays and, 230–2; grammar instruction and, 148–56; historical perspective on, 311; IECC service and, 295; literature use and, 263–81; TOEFL and, 230–2
Coe, Richard, 210
cognition, 1, 169 coherence, 42

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

College Composition and Communication, 26
College English, 269
College ESL, 25
Collins COBUILD English Language Dictionary, 154
Common Underlying Proficiency Hypothesis, 246–7 composition: 1, 18, 101–2; appropriation and, 124–5, 129; computers and, 285–306; context and, 22; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; curriculum influence and, 75; discourse-level structure and, 20–1; feedback and, 119–36; form-function relationships and, 151–2; French and, 98; genre and, 195–213 (see also genre); grammar and, 141–61 (see also grammar); multiple drafts and, 144–6; native-born students and, 24; North American issues in, 23–5; pedagogical limitations and, 22–3; process theory and, 6, 21–2; Sapir-Whorf hypothesis and, 20; sentence-level structure and, 19–20; social context and, 58; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; teaching literature for, 263–83;
computers: 285–6, 307–10; accuracy and, 289; agency and, 304; chat and, 296–7; communication patterns and, 299; composition and, 285–306; digital literacy and, 1–2; discourse and, 299–300; e-mail and, 295, 299–300; feedback and, 298–9; grammar software, 154; hypertext and, 300; influence of, 287; Internet resources and, 302–3; manner effects of, 292–3; MOOs and, 297–8; MUDs and, 297–8; networking and, 293–300; potential of, 304–6; quality and, 292–3; revision and, 289; rewriting anxiety and, 289; student attitudes and, 288–9; team editing and, 294–5; textual properties and, 289; usage issues and, 304–6; Web sites, 295–8, 301–3; word processing and, 288–93
Computers and Classroom Culture (Schofield), 285 conceptualizations: curriculum effects and, 71, 74–89; influences of, 86–7; teachers', 71–92 Conference on College Composition and Communication (CCCC), 18, 25 construct validity: 165–6; assessment of, 167–79 content: 320; curriculum influence and, 71–92; feedback and, 123–4; multiple drafts and, 144–6; reading/writing relationships and, 254–5; text research and, 41–2 context: 22, 37, 55, 191, 194; assessment and, 173–5; classroom environment and, 56, 58; composition programs and, 58; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; cultural effects on, 192–3; feedback and, 120–1, 125–7; genre and, 192, 195–213; goals and, 56–8; grammar and, 143; issues in, 58–9; reading/writing relationships and, 242–62; task analyses and, 255–6 contrastive rhetoric: 53–4, 192–3, 239–41; academic writing and, 229–30; advances in, 232–6; computer science and, 238n5; criticisms of, 232–6; cultural effects and, 220, 222–3; description of, 218; discourse and, 235; EFL applications of, 227–32; essays and, 226–7, 230–2; European Union and, 235–6; examples of, 221–2, 226, 237–8; future directions for, 233–4, 236; impact of, 218–9; tertium comparationis for, 236; TESOL and, 224, 233–4; text analysis and, 220–3; U.S. history of, 223–7; Whorfian interpretation and, 224;
correlational research, 38, 43–4 Crain, J. C., 270
creativity: curriculum influence and, 77; diversity and, 87–8;

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

professional networks and, 86 criterion validity, 164–5 critical thinking, 141
Crystal, David, 235–6 culture: computers and, 301–2; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; immigrant students and, 53–4, 72, 94–104, 126; literature use and, 265, 277–8; Tannen on, 234 curriculum: case studies and, 207; college environment and, 321–3; competency-based, 90n5; composition and, 75; concepts defining, 74–9; diversity and, 87–9; ESP, 205–9; generality and, 79–81; genres and, 75–6; global differences in, 71–92; independent courses and, 77–8; integrated, 77–9; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; personal creativity and, 77; professional networks and, 86; reading/writing relationships and, 254–5; specificity and, 79–81; student achievement and, 81–4; Sydney School, 200–4, 231n8, 231n9; text functions and, 76; topical themes and, 76–7; uniformity issues and, 84–9

Darling, Charles, 302
Dave's ESL Cafe, 298
deafness, 104–7
democracy, 324–6
Devon method, 164
dictionaries, 46, 99–101, 278, 302 digital literacy, 1–2
Di Pietro, R., 271, 275
Directory of Professional Preparation Programs in TESOL in the United States, 27 disciplinary communities, 191 discourse: computers and, 299–300; contrastive rhetoric and, 235; metadiscourse, 212n2; structure levels and, 20–1; text research and, 41–2 diversity: feedback and, 126–7; literature use and, 275–7 drafting process: 21–2, 122–3; grammar and, 141, 144–6

Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC), 303 Educational Testing Service (ETS), 165, 168 e-mail, 289, 295–300, 303
Email Projects Home Page, 303
empirical approaches: 60; categorization schemes and, 61n3; causal-comparative, 38; correlational, 38; experimental, 38; qualitative, 38–9; surveys, 38
English: academic, 207–9; APA style and, 95; basic literary skills in, 78; career options of, 1–2; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; dictionary use and, 46, 99–101, 278, 302; Finnish and, 229–30; globalization and, 1–3; grammar and, 141–61 (see also grammar); immersion approach, 102; independent courses and, 77–8; integrated curricula and, 77–9; Japan and, 2; linguistic structure of, 98; literature use and, 263–81; need for teachers of, 1–3; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; noun clauses and, 155; political issues and, 16–17; sentence structure and, 95; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; U.S. higher education and, 16–18; WSSE, 235–6
English as a foreign language (EFL) writing, 49; academic writing and, 229–30; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; course differences and, 67–8; diversity and, 87–8; essay writing and, 230–2; general approach and, 79–81, 83–4; genre and, 195–217 (see also genre); global differences in, 71–92; specificity and, 79–80, 82–3; uniformity issues and, 84–9;
English as a second language (ESL) writing: 8–10, 30–4, 60–65; appropriation and, 124–5, 129; ASL and, 104–7; assessment and,

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

English (cont.)
117, 162–89; behavior coding and, 47; case studies of, 93–112; categorization schemes and, 61n3; commercial textbook influence and, 86; composition and, 23–5 (see also composition); computers and, 285–306; conferences and, 128–9; context and, 22, 55–59; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; course differences and, 67–8; curriculum implications and, 71–92; dictionary use and, 46, 99–101, 278, 302; disciplinary communities and, 191; discourse-level structure and, 20–1; diversity and, 87–9; empirical approaches to, 38–9; English departments and, 18; ESP and, 205–9; experimental studies in, 48–50; feedback and, 46, 50, 119–40 (see also feedback); fluency and, 45–6; form-function relationships and, 151–2; foundational knowledge for, 4; future directions for, 28–9; general approach and, 79–81, 83–4; genre and, 192, 195–217 (see also genre); global differences in, 1–3, 71–92; grammar and, 116–17, 141–61 (see also grammar); historical perspective on, 15–34, 311; independent courses and, 77–8; instructional settings and, 253–8; integrated curricula and, 77–9; interdisciplinary emergence of, 25–8; intervention effects and, 48; learning and, 115; literature use in, 264–8; methodological factors in, 6–7; multiple drafts and, 122–4, 127–8, 144–6; native language differences and, 24, 68–9; network lists and, 295–6; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; origins of, 12; overvaluing of, 315–31; pedagogical limitations of, 22–3; peer review and, 46; perceptions of, 110–11; post-graduate influences on, 86; preparing for, 11–14; process theory and, 21–2, 44–50; professional networks and, 86; raters and, 54; reader relationships and, 242–62; response analysis and, 119–40; revision and, 45, 49, 124–5, 127–8; sentence-level structure and, 19–20; single drafts and, 127; specificity and, 79–80, 82–3; students and, 53–4 (see also students); success stories for, 93–114; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; as symbiotic field, 28–9; talk aloud protocols and, 47; teachers and, 3–5, 50–3 (see also teachers); as TESL subdiscipline, 19–23; text research and, 37, 39–44; theory building and, 5–7; uniformity issues and, 84–9; U.S. higher education and, 16–18; writing controversies in, 270–2
English for Academic Purposes (EAP): context and, 22; curricular issues in, 254–5; genre and, 207; grammar and, 153–5; needs analyses and, 251–2; reading/writing relationships and, 251–2, 254–8
English for Special Purposes (ESP): 25, 213n8; case studies and, 207; context and, 22; functional sections of, 205–6; genre and, 205–9; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; Swales and, 205–6
English Language Institute (ELI), 17–18
English Language Testing Service (ELTS), 176
English Through the Internet, 303
Enkvist, Nils Erik, 228
Erazmus, Edward, 19
Error, 152–3, 173–4
Errors and Expectations (Shaughnessy), 143 essays: assessment and, 163–4, 168, 170–5; contrastive rhetoric and, 226–7; educational literature and, 273–4; Japan and, 230–2; Senegal and, 230–2; TOEFL and, 230–2;

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

ethnographic methods, 177–8
European Union, 235–6, 238n3 exam cultures, 182
experimental research, 38, 43–4
Extensive Reading Hypothesis, 248–9 face validity, 164

feedback: 46, 115, 137–40; appreciation for, 133–4; appropriation and, 124–5; computers and, 298–9; conferences and, 121, 128–9; context and, 120–1, 125–7; contradiction in, 120–1; diversity and, 126–7; effective criteria for, 122–9; face-to-face, 120–1; forms of, 119–20, 131, 136n3; grammar and, 123–4, 126, 146–7, 152–3; individual, 120–1, 125–7, 146–7; L1 barriers to, 119–20; multiple drafts and, 122–4, 127–8; peer response and, 129–34; perspectives on, 119–22; reading/writing relationships and, 256–7; research limitations in, 134–6; response-and-revision dynamic and, 120–1; single drafts and, 127; teachers and, 122–9 fiction, 274
Finnish, 228–30, 235–6
Flemish, 221 fluency, 45–6 form-function relationships, 151–2 foundational knowledge, 4
Freedman, A., 209–10
French, 96–9
Fries, Charles C., 16–17

Gaer, Susan, 303
Geisler, C., 320
"Generative Rhetoric of the Paragraph" (Christensen), 20 genre: 192, 213–7; abridged fiction, 274; assessment and, 155–6, 173–4; children's literature and, 274; curriculum influence and, 75–6; defined, 195–7; ESP and, 205–9; grammar and, 153–6; literature and, 264, 272–8; New Rhetoricians and, 209–11; novels, 272–3; poetry, 273; Process Movement and, 212; reading/writing relationships and, 256; research in, 197–200; short stories, 272–3; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; theory and, 197–200, 211–12 globalization: 1–3, 230; course differences and, 67–8; curriculum influences and, 71–92 grammar: 116–17, 157–61; assessment and, 162; context and, 143; critical thinking and, 141; drafting and, 141, 144–6; feedback and, 123–4, 126, 146–7, 152–3; genre and, 153–6; integration of, 157; language accuracy and, 143; literature and, 265–6; New Rhetoricians and, 212n3; noninterventionist approach and, 144; online resources for, 302–3; revision and, 142; sentence-level structure and, 19–20; student perspective and, 148–51, 155–6; syntactic complexity and, 40, 42
"Grammar, Grammars and the Teaching of Grammar" (Hartwell), 143

Halliday, M. A. K., 200
Hartwell, P., 142–3
Hawisher, G. E., 305–6 holistic scoring, 175
Hoter, Elaine, 303
Hyland, K., 154
hypertext, 287, 300

individual attention: assessment and, 168, 181–2; feedback and, 120–1, 125–7, 146–7 Institute of International Education (IIE), 2 integrated curricula, 77–9
Intercultural E-mail Classroom Connections (IECC), 295
Interdependence Hypothesis, 246–7
International Association of Teachers of English as a Foreign Language (IATEFL), 303

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

International English Language Testing Service (IELTS), 176–7 Internet, 1, 298, 302–3. See also computers
"Internet Projects for Learners and Teachers of English," 303 Internet TESL Journal, 298, 303 invention strategies, 21–2

Japanese: contrastive rhetoric and, 224, 226, 236; essay writing and, 230–2
Johns, Ann, 250–2
Journal of Basic Writing (JBW), 24–5
Journal of Second Language Writing, 3, 26, 36

Kaplan, Robert, 20, 218–9, 223
Kidon Media-Link, 302
Kitzhaber, Albert, 269
Knight, L., 268, 270
Korean, 223–4
Krashen, Stephen, 143–4, 248–9
Kubota, Ryuko, 233

Language Learning, 25–6
Language Threshold Hypothesis, 247–9
Larson, Richard, 269
Latosi-Swain, E., 269–70
Leki, Ilona, 125, 250–2
Lindemann, Erika, 269
Linguistic Funland TESL, 303 linguistics: 16, 20–21, 40, 42; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; genre and, 195–213 (see also genre); grammar and, 141–56; network lists and, 295–6; reading/writing relationships and, 242–62; SFL and, 200 LINGUIST list, 296
literature: 193–4, 282–3; canonical, 274–7; genre and, 264, 272–4; grammar and, 265–6; historical controversies in, 269–72; multicultural, 274–7; novels, 272–3, 280; poetry, 273; pros/cons of using, 264–8; reading and, 263–4, 279; short stories and, 272–3; social issues and, 277–8
Lloyd-Jones, R., 142 local area networks (LANs). See computers Longman Grammar of Spoken and Written English, 154

McKay, S., 271
Macromedia, 301
Matsuda, Paul Kei, 218
Mauranan, A., 229
Mbaye, A., 231–2
metadiscourse, 212n2 models, 5–7
Modern Language Journal, 35
MonoConc, 303
Moran, C., 299–300
multiple drafts: 21–2; composition and, 144–6; feedback and, 122–4, 127–8; grammar and, 141 multiple texts, 246, 250–1 multiple trait scoring, 176 multi-user domains, object oriented (MOOs), 297–8 multi-user domains (MUDs), 297–8 native English speakers (NES) teachers, 54 native language (L1): 5; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; negative feedback and, 119–20; perceptions of, 68–9; reading relationships and, 242–6; writing controversies in, 269–70

Nelson, Gayle, 227
NETEACH-L list, 296, 298
networking, 293–300
New Rhetoricians, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3
newsgroups, 295–6
nonfiction novels, 272 noninterventionism, 144 noun clauses, 155 novels, 272–3, 280

online writing labs (OWLs), 112n3
Oxford Teachers' Club, 301

pedagogical approaches: 15; common conceptualization influence and, 86–7; composition and, 23–5;

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; curriculum influences and, 71–81; discourse-level structure and, 20–1; English departments and, 18; ESP and, 205–9; feedback and, 119–36; future directions for, 28–9; genre and, 195–213; grammar instruction and, 141–61; interdisciplinary emergence and, 25–8; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; process theory and, 21–2; reading/writing relationships and, 242–62; sentence-level structure and, 19–20; student achievement and, 81–4; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; teacher conceptualizations and, 71, 74–81, 86–9; uniformity issues and, 84–9; U.S. higher education issues and, 16–18 peer review: 46, 180; pros/cons of 129–30; research on, 130–4 plagiarism, 303 poetry, 273
portfolios, 179–80
post-graduate education, 86
Pratt, E., 298
primary trait scoring, 175–6 process theory: 6, 21–2; behavior coding and, 47; genre and, 195–213; information use and, 49–50; intervention effects and, 48; research on, 37, 44–50; talk aloud protocol and, 47; techniques used, 44, 47 professional networks, 86
Project Gutenberg Electronic Library, 302 punctuation, 164

qualitative research: 38–9; students and, 53–5; teachers and, 50–5

Raforth, B. A., 206
raters, 54, 178
reading: aloud, 279; assessment and, 177–9; directionality issue and, 249–50; ethnographic methods and, 177–8; extensive reading hypothesis and, 248–9; instructional settings and, 253–8; interdependence hypothesis and, 246–7; L1 research into, 245–6; L2 research into, 246–53; language threshold hypothesis and, 247–8; literature use and, 263–4; needs analyses for, 251–2; rater training effects and, 178; role of, 243–4; sense of audience and, 242; strategic, 256; theories for, 244–5, 253–4; writing relations and, 193, 242–62
Reading in the Composition Classroom (Carson & Leki), 250
Reid, J., 121
revision, 45, 49, 124–5 rhetoric: 1, 103 (See also contrastive rhetoric); assessment and, 174–5; cross-cultural influences of, 174–5; genre and, 195–213; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; reading/writing relationships and, 256; Sapir-Whorf hypothesis and, 20; textual influence and, 111
Roen, D., 316, 324–5
Russian, 223, 275

Sadarangani, U., 276
Sapir-Whorf hypothesis, 20 scale length, 176–7
schMOOze University, 298
Schoer, L., 142
Schofield, Jane Ward, 285
Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), 163
Scollon, Ron, 233
second language acquisition (SLA), 153
Selfe, C. L., 305–6
Semitic languages, 223
Senegal, 230–2, 236
sentence-level structure, 19–20
Shapiro, N., 276
Shaughnessy, Mina, 24, 143 short stories, 272–3 Smagorinski, P., 320 software. See computers
Soter, A., 223
Spack, Ruth, 233, 271–2, 277

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

Spanish, 17, 97, 101–4, 126
Sperling, Dave, 298, 303
Stanovich, K., 249
Sternglass, M., 317
students: 35, 111; appropriation and, 124–5, 129; assessment and, 81–4, 162–89 (see also assessment); classroom environment and, 67; cognitive factors and, 1, 169; college environment and, 321–3; commercial textbook influence and, 86; computers and, 285–306; context and, 55–9; deaf, 104–7; empowerment of, 129; feedback and, 119–36 (see also feedback); globalization and, 1–3; grammar and, 148–51; immigrant, 53–4, 72, 94–104, 126; individual attention and, 125–7, 146–7; L1 perceptions and, 68–9; literature and, 263–8; network lists and, 295–6; online resources for, 302–3; peer review and, 46, 129–34, 180; post-graduate influences on, 86; progress of, 162; reading/writing relationships and, 244–6, 256–7; research on, 53–5; role playing and, 279; success stories for, 93–114; word processing and, 288–9
Sullivan, N., 298 survey research, 38, 55
Swales, John, 205–6
Sweet, Henry, 16–17
Sydney School, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9
syntax. See grammar
Systemic Functional Linguistics (SFL), 195, 200–4

TACT, 303
talk aloud protocols, 47
Tannen, Deborah, 234
Tate, Gary, 269
teachers: appropriation and, 124–5, 129; assessment and, 162–89 (see also assessment); ASTP Method and, 17; best practices and, 5; CCCC and, 18; classroom environment and, 67; cognitive factors and, 1, 169; commercial textbook influence and, 86; computers and, 285–306; conceptualization influences and, 71, 74–81, 86–9; context and, 55–9; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; current-traditional paradigm and, 127; curriculum implications and, 71–92; diversity in, 87–9; feedback and, 119, 122–9 (see also feedback); general approach and, 79–81, 83–4; global differences in, 67–8, 71–89; grammar instruction and, 141–61; growing need for, 1–3; immigrants and, 24–5; individual attention and, 125–7, 146–7; lesson plans and, 3–4; methods for, 110–12; noninterventionist approach and, 144; online resources for, 302–3; overvaluing and, 315–31; post-graduate influences and, 86; professional networks and, 86; reading/writing relationships and, 256–8; research and, 35–59; role playing and, 279; success stories for, 93–114; training of, 3–5
Teaching English in the Two-Year College, 26
Teaching of English as a second language (TESL): 18; context and, 22; discourse-level structure and, 20–1; formative feedback and, 21–2; future directions of, 28–9; invention strategies and, 21; L2 as subdiscipline of, 19–23; multiple drafts and, 21–2; pedagogical limitations and, 22–3; process theory and, 21–2; sentence-level structure and, 19–20
Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL), 18, 224, 233–4, 301, 303 team editing, 294–5 technology. See computers
TESL-L list, 296
TESOL Quarterly, 26, 35, 233, 271 testing: 327 (see also assessment); computer-based, 162–3, 165, 180–1; Devon method, 164; direct v. indirect, 162–3, 167; error

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

significance and, 173; essay, 163–4, 168, 170–5; multiple-choice and, 162–3; rater training effects and, 178–9; SAT, 163; scoring and, 175–7; statisticians and, 163; stock answers and, 172; TOEFL, 162–3; topic effects and, 170–3 Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL): 315, 328n1; essays and, 230–2; writing teachers and, 162–3, 167, 169
Test of Written English (TWE), 42, 162–3
text: 37; academic, 207–9; analysis activities and, 155–6; assessment of, 117, 173–5; computers and, 304–6; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; curriculum influence and, 75–6; ESP and, 205–9; expository, 153–4; feedback and, 123–4; finished text analysis and, 115–18; genre and, 195–213; grammar and, 153–6; hypertext and, 287, 300; layered, 300; metatext and, 229–30; multiple, 246, 250–1; production activities and, 155–6; reading/writing relationships and, 242–62; rewriting anxiety and, 289; rhetoric emphasis and, 111; Sydney School and, 200–4, 213n8, 213n9; word processing and, 288–93
textbooks. See literature text research: content and, 40–2; discourse and, 41; focus of, 39–42; independent/dependent variables and, 43–4; intervention effects and, 43; lexical sophistication and, 40; linguistic accuracy and, 40, 42; measurement choice in, 42; quality and, 42; syntactic complexity and, 40, 42; techniques for, 39, 43–4 Thai, 223–4
Tirkkonen-Condit, Sonja, 227
topical themes, 76–7
Trimbur, J., 324–5
Truscott, J., 146–7
T-units, 174
tutoring, 46
University of Lancaster UCREL, 303

Ventola, E., 229
Vilmi, Ruth, 303
Virtual English Language Center, 298
Virtual Learning Community, 303

Warschauer, Mark, 303–4
washback, 182, 183n1
WebCT, 301
Web sites, 295–8, 301–3
Whorfian interpretation, 224 wide area networks (WANs). See computers Willoquet-Maricondi, P., 265, 272 word processing, 288–93
World Standard Spoken English (WSSE), 235–6
World Wide Web. See computers
WPA: Writing Program Administration, 26
Writer's Workbench, 171 writing: general, 259–62, 294–5 (see also English as a second language (ESL) writing); academic, 174, 207–9, 226–7, 229–30; assessment of, 162–84; college environment and, 321–3; complexity of, 163–4; computers and, 285–306; contrastive rhetoric and, 218–39; criterion validity and, 164–5; democracy and, 324–6; directionality issue and, 249–50; disciplinary content and, 319–21; employment and, 323–4; error significance and, 173; essay, 230–2; extensive reading hypothesis and, 248–9; genre and, 195–213; historical perspective on, 311; instructional settings and, 253–8; interdependence hypothesis and, 246–7; justice and, 324–6; language threshold hypothesis and, 247–8; to learn, 250–1; literature use and, 263–81; multiple texts and, 246, 250–1; needs analyses for, 251–2; New Rhetoricians and, 195, 199, 209–11, 212n3; overvaluing of, 315–31; personal fulfillment and, 318–19;

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org

CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-52983-9 - Exploring the Dynamics of Second Language Writing
Edited by Barbara Kroll
Index
More information

writing (cont.)
plagiarism and, 303; potential of, 328; prompt subjects and, 170–3, 181–2; punctuation and, 164; rater training effects and, 178–9; reading relationships and, 242–62; revision and, 290; rewriting anxiety and, 289; role of, 243–4; sense of audience and, 242; spelling and, 164; strategic, 256; subject matter and, 170–1; task analysis and, 170–3; team editing and, 294–5; testing and, 163–4, 327 (see also testing); word processing and, 288–93; writing research, 44–9
Written Communication, 26, 36

Yoshimura, T., 231

Zamel, Vivian, 21, 233, 252

© Cambridge University Press www.cambridge.org