

FIGURE I6.25. Laminated carbonate (dark) and anhydrite (light) from the Castile Formation (Permian) of west Texas and New Mexico. Each layer precipitated at the surface of a stratified brine body as chemogenic mud. The volume/surface area ratio was large enough to keep brine below supersaturation.