

FIGURE 18.9. A seismic section showing a Pleistocene leveed channel with sediment waves preserved on the levee surface. The inset shows a reflection-dip-magnitude map for the levee surface with the location of the seismic section. The wave amplitude is greatest adjacent to the outside of the downstream parts of channel bends. Makassar Strait, Indonesia. Courtesy of Henry Posamentier.