

FIGURE 13.70. A large-scale sequence of fluvial deposits from the Miocene Siwaliks of northern Pakistan. The sandstone-body (channel-deposit) proportion decreases, increases, and decreases upwards over 2 km of strata, but also varies over 100–200 m and tens of meters. The photos show zones of high and low sandstone-body proportion. From Bridge (2006).

