

FIGURE 13.67. An asymmetrical channel belt, Senguerr River, Argentina. The channel belt occupies one side of the floodplain, as a result of tectonic tilting. The floodplain is bordered by dissected uplands (background) or a terrace margin (foreground). From Bridge (2006).