

Reflect, Post, and Share on Readers' Blog or VoiceThread (3.3.1)

Effectiveness of a Blended Path

Think about a possible blended path with input front-loading or input back-loading that you have designed or you would design as a teacher, or a blended path you have encountered as a student. You may share your experience by responding to the following questions on your (class) blog or on your (class) VoiceThread:

- a. When is a blended path with input front-loading more effective, and when is a blended path with input back-loading more effective?
- b. If you have designed a blended path as a teacher, why did you decide upon one implementation type or for the other? Try to explain the conditions for learners' preparedness that you took into consideration.