

Meaning - Paul Portner

1. Kai von Fintel is a Professor of Linguistics at MIT. He maintains an interesting weblog called Semantics etc:
<http://semantics-online.org/blog/>
2. There are a number of philosophy weblogs relevant to semantics. My favorite is by Brian Weatherston, Professor of Philosophy at Cornell University, called Thoughts, Arguments, and Rants:
<http://tar.weatherson.net/>
3. The Languageblog discusses all sorts of matters pertaining of language and linguistics in an amusing way:
<http://www.languageblog.org/>
4. The online Semantics Archive hosts unpublished and pre-publication scholarly papers on semantics:
<http://semanticsarchive.net/>
5. The Wordnet project is a lexical database organizing words according to their semantic distinctions and connections (such as synonyms and hypernyms). At their website you can look up words and explore their meaning relations:
<http://wordnet.princeton.edu/>