

FIGURE 20.12. Hypothetical changes in alluvial-fan size in a foreland (compressional) basin due to hinterland tectonics and river capture. From Bridge (2003). An increase in water and sediment supply to the growing fan should result in an increase in channel size and frequent avulsion, hence increasing the channel-deposit proportion.