

Fig. E.2. Formation and evolution of convective chimney structures in the Greenland Sea. Water with potential temperature less than  $-1.14^{\circ}\text{C}$  is contained within the colored blobs. In the period from 14 to 26 February 1989, the subsurface maximum virtually disappears. (From Morawitz et al., 1994, with permission.)