

Know More about Core Teaching Practices and HLPs (7)

Additional resources on the topic of core teaching practices and HLPs:

- The interest in HLPs originated in teacher education programs at the University of Michigan School of Education. You can learn more about the TeachingWorks Initiative that the University of Michigan's School of Education has done to identify HLPs by visiting the following website: www.teachingworks.org/work-of-teaching/high-leverage-practices
- OLC Quality Scorecard for Blended Learning Programs. The Online Learning Consortium identifies a set of core characteristics of effective teaching in blended courses. For more information, visit the following website: <https://onlinelearningconsortium.org/consult/olc-quality-scorecard-blended-learning-programs/>
- The UCF's Blended Learning Toolkit. As part of its Blended Learning Toolkit, the University of Central Florida proposes a set of effective practices in blended courses. For more information, visit the following website: <https://blended.online.ucf.edu/effective-practices/>